freight train at the corner of Clement Ave. and Glenmore Street. The truck's fender was caught by the train. The

Pearson Just Shrugs Away Latest Move By de Gaulle

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday brushed off France's newly announced program of aid for Quebec as nothing to be disturbed about.

He told a news conference there is no more reason to be disturbed than if Britain had a similar program for another Canadian province.

"The report I have seen doesn't disturb me," he said.

The prime minister's mild reaction to France's plan to increase cultural, economic and technical aid to Quebec curtailed speculation the move might worsen Franco-Canadian relations.

Mr. Pearson rebuked President de Gaulle last month for seemingly encouraging French-Canadian separatists in Quebec on a Canadian tour. The president cut short his trip and went home.

Mr. Pearson also noted that the aid fell under a 1965 Canada-France agreement. In any case, he would comment further if it was required when he had more details from Paris.

Fielding a variety of questions, Mr. Pearson said the cabinet is still trying to decide whether to permit CKVR-TV in Barrie to move closer to Toronto to broadcast into the Ontario capital.

The Board of Broadcast Governors has approved the controversial move, which has caused strong protests that it would interfere with reception from two Buffalo channels.

On the other point, he said unemployment insurance legislation, thought to involve an increase in benefits, is still high-priority with the government. But he was not sure the government could get them through this fall. They may have to wait until next year.

No government intervention is planned "at the moment" in the Scafer's International Union strike on Great Lakes ships.

Mr. Pearson expected the next report of the much-criticized commission on biculturalism and bilingualism to be in his hands by October. Although not the final report, it will be a major document. On housing, he said the government had reduced its demands on the money market for loan requirements. He promised another look at the question in the fall.

Reds 'Infiltrate' Into CYC Ranks

MONTREAL (CP)—The Gazette says radicals, some of them Marxist, and others possibly Communist oriented, have infiltrated the federal government's Company of Young Canadians.

The newspaper, in an Ottawa story by Arthur Blakely, says the radicals "are trying to seize complete control of the relatively new and experimental government agency at the operational level and transform it into a vehicle for fomenting social discontent and radical social changes."

It adds that the radicals have been aided "by the utter confusion" in the government concerning the aims and purposes of the Company of Young Canadians.

The story says: "The nature, scope and methods of the ambitious plans for a take-over were outlined in an article appearing in Scan, a plush Communist-oriented magazine published in Toronto and aimed exclusively at Canada's younger generation."

"The magazine is coy about its political origins and background. 'But the Canadian Tribune, official organ of the Communist Party of Canada, is franker and more outspoken. It describes the super-deluxe little publication candidly as 'the Communist youth magazine.'"

U.S. Loses More Planes In Strikes Against N. Vietnam

SAIGON (CP)—Six more U.S. planes were lost over North Vietnam Wednesday, bringing the total for the week so far to 12, the U.S. command announced.

But a mass rally in Hanoi Wednesday night celebrated the downing of 22 U.S. jets in the same period, the North Vietnamese news agency reported.

A dispatch monitored in Hanoi said many American pilots were killed or captured, but that their "savage attacks" on heavily populated areas in the center of Hanoi killed or wounded more than 100 persons.

The U.S. spokesman in Saigon said American pilots shot down two North Vietnamese MIG-21s in dogfights around the capital Wednesday and probably a third MIG.

The U.S. command also announced that U.S. and Communist casualties increased last week as ground action stepped up in some areas of South Vietnam. But South Vietnamese casualties were less than a week before.

American casualties were 108 killed and 883 wounded. The week before 82 killed, 748 wounded and nine missing or captured were reported. The U.S. command said 1,498 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed last week, compared with 1,328 the week before.

The South Vietnamese reported 172 of their men killed, 538 wounded and five missing, compared with 283 killed, 683 wounded and 62 missing or captured the previous week.

Arab Envoy Sees New UN Debate

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—An Arab diplomat predicted Wednesday that the UN General Assembly would resume its emergency session on the Middle East about a week before the regular fall session starts Sept. 19. He told reporters he expects the emergency session will discuss the Israeli annexation of Old Jerusalem, Israeli treatment of Arab refugees and any other pending problems and then transfer all Middle Eastern issues to the regular session.

Nasser Backs Yemen Peace

CAIRO (AP)—Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser today endorsed a Sudanese formula for settling the five-year Yemeni civil war. Premier Mohammed Ahmed Mahgoub of Sudan announced.

Nasser agreed to review details of the Sudanese project in meetings with Saudi Arabian King Faisal to be held in Khartoum later this month, Mahgoub said in a statement.

Egypt has supported Yemeni republican forces which drove the King of Yemen from his throne five years ago, while Saudi Arabia has supported the royalist forces.

The Sudanese plan calls for replacing Egyptian forces now in Yemen by a joint Arab force to be drawn from Tunisia, Sudan and Algeria, prior to a general referendum of the Yemeni people to determine the shape of the government they desire.

Mahgoub, fresh from mediation talks in Saudi Arabia, arrived here Wednesday night and went straight to a meeting with Nasser. In his statement today Mahgoub said his talks with Nasser were "characterized with utter frankness and a spirit of genuine Arab fraternity."

Forest Fires Abate

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canso water bomber snuffed out a brush fire on Passage Island at the mouth of Howe Sound near Vancouver Wednesday as the British Columbia fire situation eased somewhat.

The fire was the only one that broke out Wednesday in the vast Vancouver forest district, most of which has been closed to industrial and recreational use because of a high hazard.

Sixteen new fires broke out in B.C. Wednesday and 21 were extinguished. The 332 fires still burning are being fought by 3,084 men, 19 water bombers and all heavy equipment available.

The 6,000-acre Sproat Lake fire on Vancouver Island cooled enough Wednesday to let foresters take their first look at the area. A spokesman said it appeared "we have lost a lot of mature timber."

A ban on all recreational activity in forests across southern B.C., which went into effect at 12:01 a.m., PDT Wednesday remains in effect.

The ban prohibits all camping and holidaying except in supervised provincial parks and campgrounds.

The 30,000-acre Shuswap Lake fire, 250 miles northeast of Vancouver, was relatively quiet and guards were being cut where conditions permitted, forest service officials said.

U.S. Closes Some Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A temporary emergency closure was ordered today for national forests in northern Idaho and western Montana because of extreme fire danger.

The action came as thousands of men battled fires burning over an estimated 50,000 acres of forests in the U.S. Northwest, including some in Oregon.

About 2,000 men were battling fires in the Nez Perce National Forest alone.

The closure prohibits public travel and camping except on highways and in established public campgrounds along the highways in the national forests.

Dry electrical storms, pushed by winds up to 30 miles an hour, fanned forest fires in northern Idaho and western Montana Wednesday chasing several fire crews from the path of blazes.

As wind gusts bore down on two fires covering more than 5,000 acres in Glacier National Park in Montana, officials reported crews were scurrying to avoid shifts in fire directions.

Bombs Hurlled Across Border: Tear Gas Repels Female Mob

HONG KONG (CP)—Communist Chinese firebombs set fire to the Hong Kong immigration office at the Lowu border station tonight as violence flared along the 17-mile boundary between China and Hong Kong. The fire was extinguished before it caused serious damage.

The firebombing, at dusk, was the fifth Communist attack across the border during the day.

In other attacks, British Gurkha soldiers used tear gas and smoke bombs to drive back the attacking crowds, one of which was made up almost exclusively of women.

At Man Kam To, four miles east of Lowu, some 60 to 80 peasants armed with scythes and pitchforks tore through a barricade blocking the road crossing into Hong Kong. Tear gas drove them back before they reached a new border guard post built on a ridge 200 yards behind the line.

In another incident, three Chinese swam the border river, climbed up on the Hong Kong side bank, cut the barbed wire entanglements, and then swam back to China.

In the firebombing, the Chinese hurled half a dozen gasoline-filled bottles at the Hong Kong immigration post. One landed on the roof, exploded and set the roof afire. The blaze was put out before it could spread.

Several Chinese were reported injured when the Gurkhas drove them back with tear gas and smoke bombs. The mob started to form again but Chinese army troops stopped them.

Today's incidents followed more than 50 terrorist bomb scares in Hong Kong Wednesday. About half of them were false alarms and no one was reported injured.

The incidents came as Hong Kong authorities considered imposing the death penalty for persons caught planting bombs.

U.S. Taxes Aid Cubans Into Exile

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—U.S. taxpayers are paying more than $1,000,000 each week to help a seemingly endless stream of Cuban refugees start life anew in the United States.

Total expenditures in the program have climbed to hundreds of millions of dollars, officials say.

A Cuban refugee centre spokesman called it "one of the finest investments in humanitarianism."

The number of Cuban exiles who have reached the U.S. since Fidel Castro's takeover in 1959 is estimated at nearly 400,000. About half live in Miami, the rest are scattered throughout the United States.

Some 80,000 Cubans have arrived by daily airlift established Dec. 1, 1965. Two plane loads of refugees come each week day. Each flight costs U.S. taxpayers $850.

This year's appropriations for the refugee centre, operated by the health, education and welfare department, total $51,000,000.

Soviet Retaliatory Step Considered Not Likely In Washington Circles

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Soviet threat of possible "retaliatory steps" to the intensified U.S. bombing of North Vietnam is discounted for the present time by a critic and a supporter of President Johnson's war policies.

The Russians said in a statement Wednesday that what they called the latest U.S. escalation of the conflict will "inevitably lead to the necessary retaliatory steps." They did not spell out the threat further.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright (Dem.-Ark.) of the Senate foreign relations committee called it "a mild warning that none the less should be taken seriously." He has labelled the bombing of targets near the China border a stupid move, inviting Chinese intervention.

"I don't reach the conclusion from this that the Russians are about to intervene in the war," he said. "But it might be a straw indicating which way the wind is blowing."

Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, senior Republican on the foreign relations committee, said in a separate interview he doubts anybody can guess the Soviet intentions.

As critical as ever of Johnson's policies, Fulbright said he will oppose efforts to repeal the 1961 Tonkin Bay resolution which endorsed the president's use of "all necessary means to repulse Communist aggression."

But Fulbright predicted any such move would be rejected overwhelmingly, an action he said would be interpreted as an endorsement of the president's policies. He said members would vote against repeal regarded in the eyes of the world as a repudiation of the president.

BLAMES SOFT LIFE STOCKHOLM (AP)—Recruits for Sweden's army are taller and have fewer illnesses than draftees at the turn of the century, says the army's top doctor, but they're also weaker and "depressing" physical condition. Gustav Hesselblad blames the comforts of modern life. He says recruits must improve because "they cannot bring their cars into war."

Salvation Army 'A Real Groove' To Hippies Visiting The Answer

NEW YORK (AP)—Offering free coffee and sympathetic understanding, the Salvation Army has invaded the stronghold of the hippies and the free-living, the Greenwich Village cafe called The Answer.

"They think the Army's a real groove and a beautiful thing," says Ed Herzberg, a 23-year-old soldier to the hippies who helps run the storefront cafe.

Since it opened three weeks ago, The Answer has become a popular gathering place for young people—generally between 14 and 22—and its narrow interior fills quickly each night.

For entertainment there is a hi-fi set and sometimes singers use the tiny stage at the back of the room. There are chess sets, books, and always a friendly soldier to listen.

"We make no bones about the fact that we're Christians, Christ is the answer," said Capt. Brian J. Figueroa, 24, who runs The Answer. But, he added, "It's a subtle ministry. There's no hard sell."

POLLUTION ISSUE

Some Question About Answers

The Pollution Control Board in Victoria has replied to a resolution submitted by the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce, but the answer has left chamber members puzzled about its meaning.

The chamber passed a resolution a week ago asking that no further outflows of sewage effluent be discharged into the Okanagan watershed until full and detailed investigation is completed by the provincial government.

The chamber asked that only such new outflows of sewage treatment be approved that remove nutrients to a standard of one part per million, until suitable legislation and regulations are instigated. The chamber also asked that low interest money be made available by the federal and provincial governments to municipalities to develop sewage treatment standards.

A. F. Pagel, chairman, Pollution Control Board, and formerly with the water rights branch in Kelowna, said in his letter in part:

"I think you should be further advised that standard evaluation techniques are now being applied to the waters of the Okanagan under the direction of this department through facilities of the University of British Columbia, and we will certainly have a much better idea of knowing what is happening, if anything, to the Okanagan and its waters."

"I strongly protest the efforts of any ad-hoc bodies (the chamber executive understands this means the Okanagan Watershed Pollution Control Council not the chamber of commerce) forcing decisions with respect to the quality of water or its use where local entities exist for this purpose."

"It is not within the control of our act, nor would it seem to be either a provincial, national or for that matter either, an international concern, that pollution abatement should be taken away from the local level."

"A great deal of literature crosses my desk in connection with the matter and I find no better agency than the local bodies, where properly constituted, to operate sewage treatment plants and control matters relating to the removal of harmful effluent, than themselves."

The Kelowna chamber hopes to hold its September general meeting using pollution as the topic and having C. J. Keenan, director of the Pollution Control Board as a speaker.

Decision On October Vote Welcomed By City Officials

News of Penticton's possible entry into the Okanagan Regional College has prompted city and college officials to "hold out new promise" for a college in the Valley.

"A new and possibly the last, opportunity for the Okanagan to get a college lies in the result of the Penticton plebiscite," council member C. D. Buckland said today.

"I am pleased with the news and hope the plebiscite is approved."

The plebiscite, scheduled to be held in October, was supported jointly by School District 15 (Penticton) and the Penticton city council.

A condition of the move was written into the resolution approved by the city council.

The condition provided for all school boards in the college district to agree to a financial formula covering operating and capital costs.

The formula, suggested in a report by the B.C. Research Council is expected to be approved at a meeting of the college council Monday.

Mayor R. F. Parkinson said he felt "only if Penticton was in the college plans, would there be a regional college in the Okanagan."

MAYOR PARKINSON
... prospect brighter

One of the recent appointees to the college council, H. G. Buchanan feels the plebiscite may inject new life into college plans.

"If the plebiscite is defeated, the college will have to take a good, hard look at the entire situation in the Valley," he said.

Apparently, many feel the college will live or die on the results of the Penticton plebiscite. Others want the college and the Okanagan has "fumbled about" for a great length of time, said one college official.

President K. F. Harding, of the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce said he was "very pleased with news of the Penticton decision."

"We are cautiously optimistic," he added.

FESTIVAL APPROACHES

The work of two artists exhibiting at the Okanagan Summer Art Festival is shown above right. Weldon Munden of Keremeos, a member of the Contemporary Okanagan Artists, is shown above beside his work, "Pangeneis." Munden moved to B.C. from Alberta in 1945 and has studied at the Instituto Allende, San Miguel in Mexico, and at the Andre l'Hote Academie in Paris. He has exhibited in Canada, the U.S., Britain and France. The picture on the right is "Plant-Animal in Zebra Wood" by Peter Ochs, a great exhibitor. Ochs came to Canada from Germany in 1952, and his first exhibition of sculpture was with the Northwest Institute of Sculpture outdoor exhibition in 1956. In 1966 he was awarded a Canada Council grant to study methods of carving and preserving wood sculpture and is currently in Europe completing his study. He has been commissioned to do an outdoor cement sculpture for the archives and museum complex in Victoria.

Driving Charges Dominate Magistrate's Court Docket

A Kelowna man was fined $75 in magistrate's court today for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Richard Kent Doey, Rutland, first pleaded not guilty to the charge but when he learned the trial would not be held immediately he asked how much the fine would be.

"I have to leave tomorrow for school in Ontario and I value my schooling more than a $50 fine," he said.

Magistrate D. M. White said he was interested in seeing justice done and if Doey felt he was not guilty then a trial should be held. The case was adjourned to later in the morning. During the adjournment the RCMP prosecutor explained the charge more fully to the accused who returned to the stand and pleaded guilty. Doey admitted he left the scene but said he did not intend to escape criminal liability.

The prosecutor said Doey was involved in an accident Tuesday at 7:45 p.m. on Glenmore Street at Harvey Avenue and continued on to the Capri parking lot where he stopped for a few seconds before driving north on Highway 97 to the Stetson Village Motel. Doey said he was going to get his father. The second driver in the accident, followed Doey in another car, to the motel area.

Barry Sigfuson, Kelowna, was fined $25 and Raymond John Loseth, Rutland, $50 for following too closely behind another vehicle.

Sigfuson, 18, was involved in an accident Aug. 17 in the City Park. Loseth was in an accident Wednesday on Glenmore Street at Lawrence Avenue at 8:10 a.m.

Allan George Lesko, Rutland and Robert Francis Thornloe, Kelowna, were each fined $40 for speeding. Lesko was clocked at 50 mph in a 30 mph zone on Pandosy Street and Thornloe was clocked at 60 in a 40 mph zone on Highway 97 near the Capri Shopping Centre.

Douglas Alan Wade, RR-1, Westbank, was convicted of being a minor in possession of liquor and fined $50. He was stopped in a car on Pandosy Street July 29 at 8:30 p.m. and two bottles of beer were found in the car. Wade is in custody pending sentencing on other charges.

In magistrate's court Tuesday, Garnet Luckusta, Caledon, Sask., was fined $50 when he pleaded guilty to driving without due care and attention.

Reid's Shop To Be Rebuilt

No estimate of loss has been made yet following a fire at the R. Dow Reid Studio workshop on Lakeshore Road Sunday.

Mr. Reid said today a total inventory of the contents of the shop was still being taken.

He said the shop "will be rebuilt completely and cleaning up should start today or Friday."

Mr. Reid said most of the interior will have to be rebuilt as well as two sections of outside wall and part of the roof.

He said the loss, which included paintings, pottery, ivory sculptures, tools and electrical equipment, is covered by insurance.

Noise Curb Talks Sought

Kelowna Chamber of Commerce executive members will try to arrange a meeting between representatives of their group, the city and the RCMP, to do something about noisy cars and motorcycles operating at night on city streets.

President K. F. Harding said complaints are increasing of noisy cars, motorcycles and excessive speeding. He said the group would like to see the RCMP speed limit signs are posted on city streets, where they are placed too far apart.

Frank Addison said when a car makes a telephone call, it is a nuisance. He is "given the third degree" by the RCMP. He said the noise is a nuisance and that the noise is a nuisance and that the noise is a nuisance.

Donna Young Dies At Coast

Mrs. Donna Jean Young, 36, formerly of Kelowna, died early this morning in St. Paul's Hospital, Vancouver, following a brief illness. Born in Winnipeg, she was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Pope, Green Road, Okanagan Mission. She moved to Kelowna in 1950, and had been active in Regatta and Lady-of-the-Lake functions. She worked as a secretary at the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce from September, 1965 until January this year. She then moved to Vancouver. She is survived by her parents and two daughters, Debbie, 15, and Nancy, 13. Day's Funeral Service is in charge of arrangements, which are not yet complete.

COMPANY SUE
KINNAIRE (C.P.)-Ernest and Grace Kinnaird filed a writ in Vancouver Wednesday to seek an injunction restraining Columbia Cellulose from causing a nuisance. The couple claimed damages for illness and property damage caused by the company's operations in Kelowna.

$1,500,000 Industrial Auction Will Draw Many To Rutland

One of the largest industrial auctions ever to take place in the Okanagan will be held Saturday at the Rutland Sawmill site on the Black Mountain Road from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The equipment from two companies, the Olinger Lumber Co. Ltd. and Rutland Sawmills Ltd., will go on the block. The replacement value of the 500 lots, which range from grease guns to a 1965 de-barker, has been estimated at $1,500,000. The de-barker alone has a replacement value of $20,000.

The items include sawmill equipment, tools, office equipment, trucks, fork lifts, dry kilns, motors from one h.p. to 200 h.p., a steam plant and box factory.

Auctioneers are Masphard's Auctioneers of Vancouver, with Roy Jackson, the western vice-president in charge. Mr. Jackson said Wednesday the last auction the company handled in this area, of this size, was the Grant Construction auction in 1952.

Some 500 people are expected to attend, from many parts of B.C. and Alberta. Two auctioneers will alternate at the block.

The Olinger Lumber Company is located in Canada and export saws were moved to the Rutland site to facilitate the sale.

CHAMBER BRIEFS

Pollution Effect On Lake Will Be Checked Sunday

Kelowna Chamber of Commerce executive members have arranged a tour to study the effect of pollution in Okanagan Lake. The tour will be by boat and will leave the rowing club at the Aquatic building in the City Park, Sunday at 8:30 a.m. People interested in the topic may attend. The mayor and aldermen have been invited to make the trip. The next step is a meeting of Valley chamber representatives to discuss individual problems. No date has been set.

The governor of Washington State wrote the chamber to say he will not be able to attend a chamber general meeting in Kelowna, due to his heavy schedule. He has suggested a substitute speaker from his state department of commerce. The chamber did not make a decision today.

The Carter report on taxation will be the subject of a chamber general meeting in October. A panel is to be supplied by the B.C. chamber, which is trying to get people informed.

Sunny . . .

The weatherman predicts sunny skies today with a few afternoon cloudy periods. Winds should be light, except northerly 15 in some valleys. Little change in temperature is expected.

Wednesday's high and low readings were 80 and 51, compared with 87 and 48 a year ago.

The low tonight and high Friday at Penticton, Kamloops and Cranbrook are 85, 85, 85 and 85, 85, 85 and 85, 85, 85 and 85.

LARGE THROWAWAY
Waste paper collection in Sweden totaled about 300,000 tons in 1966, or about 20,000 tons more than in the previous year.

The Okanagan Cariboo Trail Association, now Pan-Am West, was a pioneer in construction of Highway 97 from Alaska to Mexico.

YUMMY WEEDS

That's where the Okanagan comes in. In spite of its poor reputation as a "weed" country, it is a great discovery.

His huge appetite makes him a living marine lawn mower. To keep his three stomachs filled he must chop 100 pounds of weeds daily. Since he lives to be about 100 years old he needs a mess of weeds.

Weeds we have, and according to the authorities, more are growing every day as a result of effluent flowing into Okanagan Lake.

The weeds are complex, but the result of nothing is done is not difficult to predict. Okanagan Lake will become a weed-choked body of water, not fit for drinking, let alone swimming.

President K. F. Harding asked chamber members to support the Arts Festival in the City Park, Friday to Sunday. For the third time this year the CBC will come to Kelowna, this time for the filming of the festival.

W. T. J. Bulman says available slots in the arena parking lot are fully rented and the city is thinking of renting 19 of the two-hour parking stalls on the site. He said only five or six empty stalls remain for rent on the Queensway lot. Mr. Bulman said the time may have arrived when low rental parking be made available at the curling rink site.

Highwaymen Roll Through

A caravan, en route to the 1967 Pan-West International convention at Prince George, was to pass through Kelowna at about 3:15 p.m. this afternoon on the last leg of a four-day journey.

The caravan, which originated at Ellenburgs, Wash., was to leave Penticton at 2:30 p.m., arriving in Vernon at 3:45. No stop was scheduled for Kelowna.

Wenatchee, Wash., agreed to honor Canada's centennial year and awarded the 1967 convention to Prince George, Friday and Saturday. Wenatchee will host the 1968 convention.

Included in the caravan are many civic officials from communities along Highway 97. With the group is R. K. Gordon, president of Pan-Am West, manager of the Prince George Chamber of Commerce and former co-ordinator of the Chamber of Commerce Visitor and Convention Bureau of Kelowna.

The Okanagan Cariboo Trail Association, now Pan-Am West, was a pioneer in construction of Highway 97 from Alaska to Mexico.

700 Kelowna Businessmen Being Checked On Hydros

The Kelowna Boat Racing Association is going to take a look at the 1968 British Columbia Cup unlimited hydroplane races right now, chairman Frank Addison says.

Friday or Saturday the association will send 700 questionnaires to small trade licence holders to ask if they want the races back next year.

Mr. Addison told a chamber executive meeting today there has been a feeling local merchants do not co-operate with organizations which seek to bring more visitors to Kelowna, but he felt perhaps in this case no one had ever asked them.

K. F. Harding, chamber president, said Kelowna obtained really good publicity from the hydroplane races.

"We had the real fans here this year and everybody got a real kick out of it," he said.

Mr. Harding congratulated Mr. Addison and his committee on the "fabulous" job done.

Mr. Addison said "physically" the races were a success and within two weeks the association should know the financial picture.

He said the British Columbia Cup has gone to Tampa, Fla., to be used by the Budweiser Brewing Company in a cross-country promotion. The cup has

Pre-Loading Soon Done

Pre-loading on the site of a new Sun-Type Products Ltd. warehouse northeast of Weddell Place will be finished this week.

Now the 33,000 tons of gravel will sit for a month to six weeks to compress the land. The gravel will then be taken off the site and a 30,000 square foot warehouse will be erected.

Using gravel ensures the ground will be settled so when the warehouse is piled 27 feet high with canned goods it will not sink.

Tenders will be called in the near future for the warehouse, but no cost estimates have yet been made, according to Ian Greenwood, general manager of Sun-Type.

Expo Flight Now Booked

The Kelowna Chamber of Commerce-sponsored chartered flight to Expo has 100 of the 102 seats spoken for.

Frank Addison told a chamber executive meeting today the flight was at times oversubscribed but with the date of the flight approaching people are confirming their earlier reservation.

The aircraft leaves the Kelowna Airport Sept. 18 and returns Sept. 24. Two-thirds of the complement are Kelowna residents and one-third from Penticton, Vernon and even a few from Salmon Arm.

A chamber member has checked the accommodations in Montreal and the night clubs and places where the group will eat together and all have been described as "first rate," Mr. Addison said.

"We have been told this will be one of the largest, if not the largest, tour from western Canada," he said. Mr. Addison will attend some of the sessions of the Canadian chamber annual meeting while in Montreal.

NO INJURIES
About $200 damage was done in a two-car collision at 9:20 a.m. Wednesday on Pandosy Street, Cars driven by Roy Seft, 2821 Pandosy St., and Norman Guthrie, Kamloops, were involved in the mishap. No injuries were reported.

Three Stomachs Could Aid Area

Not only would this improve navigation and recreation use of such water, but it could save millions of dollars spent annually on less effective methods.

This Sunday the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce is running a tour to inspect pollution south of the Okanagan Lake bridge.

The weeds are certain to be one of the most visible results of what happens when effluent enters the water.

Perhaps the officials will decide the weeds must go.

They might be able to save themselves some money . . . If Okanagan doesn't mind sharing the lake with a manatee or two.

No Room At Ottawa For Three Major Parties?

For those who like to study political trends there are some interesting views expressed in the August issue of the Monetary Times. Commenting on the progress made by the New Democratic Party and its prospects in coming elections, the financial writer says:

"The closer the New Democratic Party comes to power, the more moderate becomes its policy. The dominant slogan at the recent national convention was not Up The Red Flag, or even Onward to Socialism; it was Don't Rock the Boat. Dalton Camp, the most with-it of the Tory leaders, would have found the proceedings very dull, and Lester Pearson could have voted for most of the resolutions approved with hardly a qualm."

"But that's the genius of the democratic system. It precludes violent change by forcing upon power-seekers the necessity to build a broad consensus among voters who may be ready for radical reform but never for revolution. The CCF became the NDP when its leaders recognized this fact and began to move from doctrinaire positions to pragmatic policy-making. In the process, the NDP has become a party like the others, differing only in degree and not in principle, and it put the roof on its new image at its convention."

They may be very successful with this appeal. Already they are neck and neck with the Conservatives in the opinion polls, and rapidly catching up on the Liberals. If the trend continues, the NDP will certainly form the Opposition in the next Parliament and could very well become the government."

"This is heady stuff for a party that has never before smelt even a whiff of power. But the New Democrats should realize that they are engaging in a mighty gamble. How much of their present popularity rests precariously on disillusion, not with the Liberal and Conservative parties, but with John Diefenbaker and Pearson? In the past, the CCF-NDP has been able to rely on a rock-solid base of committed voters. Now, as it reaches for power, it has begun to embrace the fluid mass of the uncommitted. Some of these, no doubt, will be caught up in continuing loyalty to the NDP, but many—perhaps the great majority—could just as easily desert back to one of the older parties."

"Diefenbaker will be replaced as Tory leader in September. Pearson is still expected to announce his intention to retire in the fall and to hand over to a new Prime Minister early next year. If they are replaced by familiar faces lending no excitement to the political scene—say by Donald Fleming and Paul Martin, or Davie Fulton and Mitchell Sharp—the way should be clear for an NDP sweep to power. Faced with three respectable but dull parties, the voters would probably choose the newest."

But what happens if the Tories and/or the Liberals select dynamic and exciting leaders? Camp, for example, could give the Conservatives enormous appeal, he crackles with political electricity. John Turner or Jean Marchand, to mention only two possibilities, could make Tommy Douglas look like a fossilized grandfather."

"The game would then be up for the NDP. And not only for the next election, but probably for all time. The party could not stand for another major defeat at the polls. It might retain the old committed vote, and relapse into the role of the CCF, but it would no longer be a real contender for power, as it is now. The party's managers have no illusions about this; their sons are not the same men they are. As the recent convention proved, the new generation of NDPers are pragmatists who put the achievement of power to exercise their ideas ahead of loyalty to any abstract body of principles. If they cannot win with the NDP they will move to another party with hardly a moment's hesitation."

"If this is the NDP's gamble, it is also the gamble of the Liberals. The Conservatives are already moving toward absorption of Social Credit—Bob Thompson is ready to sign up if the new Tory leader is to his liking—and could probably survive as a third party in Parliament representing a substantial but minority right-wing philosophy. But the Grits could no more live as a rump than could the NDP; the truth is that the two parties are now interchangeable and, inevitably, one must absorb the other for all practical purposes."

"There is no worthwhile difference between the moderate, respectable, play-by-the-rule NDP and the Liberal Party in one of its eras of zealous reform. Indeed, the Grits might be more adventurous in office than New Democrats constrained by inexperience and the awesome responsibility of unfamiliar power. The floating vote on which all parties depend to win elections can now move between NDP and Liberals, with no difficulty, but the next election will be for keeps. There is no room in Parliament for three major parties."

Derailed Storms

That something has gone wrong with the storm system out of the Pacific is proved not only by the drought, high temperatures and forest fires in Oregon, Washington and British Columbia. It is evidenced also by the heavy rains and floods in Alaska.

Better than six inches of rain fell in the first two weeks of this month in the Fairbanks area, as compared with average rainfall for all of August of 2.2 inches. Down in Portland where summer showers are counted on to keep temperatures down and dampen the forests, rain did not fall in 55 days.

Vancouver was complaining about the very dry summer while parts of Victoria were having their first water rationing period in history. And the garden-loving Victorians were not at all happy to see their gardens drying up. Even in the normally dry Okanagan, it has been more so than usual. How long since we had a rain?

The Pacific Northwest and Alaska would be happy if the summer storms got back on the old track. Now that the Peach Festival and the Regatta and the Unlimited races are over, we could use a couple of days of soaking rain.

IT HAPPENED IN CANADA

Mounties Haven't Lost One During Centennial Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Despite numerous threats against various state visitors, the Mounties haven't lost a man so far this centennial summer.

No attempts have been made to harm the dignitaries filing through Expo and Ottawa at a clockwork clip.

"None that we know," a high-ranking RCMP officer adds.

Only the visits of President de Gaulle and President Johnson have resulted in arrests. In each case someone in a Montreal crowd shouted "Murderer!"

As the host country, Canada must guard state visitors against not only violence but embarrassment as well. The responsibility is placed in the hands of the RCMP and it isn't light.

"We try quite hard to balance the need for security against the impression that they are surrounded," the officer says.

The main complaint of the crowds has been that news photographers block the view at the best vantage points. At Kingston, Ont., miffed Brownies chanted: "Down with reporters, long live the Queen."

The 200 press people with Queen Elizabeth II posed a problem at Expo. How are we going to move them if we don't keep the crowd back?

The state visits began late in April with the arrival of Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia. They end late in October with the departure of a member of the government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

Some smaller countries wanted to send heavy bodyguards armed with machine-guns. But reassurances from the RCMP, who have a professional reputation in international police circles, won them over.

Foreign bodyguards have ranged in strength from the plain Scotland Yard men with the Queen to the platoon of 20 to 30 plainclothesmen with President Johnson.

The number of Mounties has varied according to the controversy rating or popularity of the visitor and size of crowds. Extra police were needed to see that enthusiastic crowds didn't sweep Princess Grace of Monaco off her feet.

A special force of up to 50 men has been posted in Montreal to bolster the 500 Mounties—most on other duties—in the Quebec division during the visits. There are about 350 Mounties in the eastern Ontario division plus 450 at headquarters here.

The biggest force was on duty when the Queen visited on Dominion Day weekend, mainly due to the large crowds. Only one Mountie was in the de Gaulle entourage. Quebec Provincial Police and French Security men did the job.

"If he had come to Ottawa he would have had the same number as the Queen," the officer says.

Gen. de Gaulle's remarks in Quebec led to a federal rebuke, threats of violence and his abrupt departure from Montreal. Mounties there were asked to check out his plane before it departed.

The Queen, President Johnson and Cuba's state visitors also were the subject of malice. Separatists said they would embarrass the Queen, President Johnson ran into the anti-war crowd, and anti-Castro Cubans in the United States made bellicose noises.

King Constantine of Greece, who arrives in early September, is one of the most sensitive figures still to come. His country was riven by a military takeover this year.

The Mounties say there have been some threats "the public never hears about that we get from various sources." None is ignored.

"Mounties aren't consulted about a visitor's program until it has been drawn up. It's at this stage that we say 'This is impossible' or 'This is putting the individual to too great a risk.'"

Depending on the risk, buildings are checked and tenants are asked to make sure they know who is looking out their windows.

Even the air conditioning system in the National Press Building, where some visitors hold press conferences, was gone over by Mounties.

The formula for visitors is much the same. A procession of shiny black autos moves them swiftly from airport or railway station to Parliament Hill. The faster the pace the lower the risk.

The car carrying the visitor is sandwiched between two filled with alert Mounties. Another Mountie sits beside the chauffeur of the visitor's car.

City police seal off intersections as the cavalcade seeps downtown past the menacing buildings. Some have more than a hint of the Texas School Book Repository from which President Kennedy was shot in Dallas.

PATROL CROWDS

Along Wellington Street, which runs past the front of Parliament Hill, a senior Mountie in a car preceding that of the dignitary constantly looks through the rear windshield, his eyes sweeping the office windows behind.

The cavalcade pulls briskly on to Parliament Hill depositing the visitor at the door where Prime Minister Pearson greets him. During speeches young uniformed Mounties patrol the crowd, mostly tourists, and older plainclothesmen watch for trouble.

Most visitors ride in an armor-plated $25,000 limousine. Exceptions were the Queen and Gen. de Gaulle who travelled in open cars, regarded as risky.

A great variety of ethnic groups, including thousands of refugees, present Canadian police with special problems. Conflicting ideologies pose the constant threat of attempts to embarrass visitors.

However, Canadians generally act with hostility to impolite behavior. Police say this creates a crowd atmosphere that may make the violently inclined think twice.

Lawyers Careful On Trust Account

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario lawyer who fails to keep his trust account in good shape is playing a dangerous game. He never knows when he'll get a visit from an auditor empowered by the Law Society of Upper Canada to examine his books.

If the auditor discovers that the account, containing money held in trust for clients, has been mishandled, the provincial law society may take disciplinary action.

And if there has been misappropriation of the money the result could be punishment as strong as disbarment and legal action leading to jail.

It's all part of a program of blitz and spot audits started in 1964. About 65 per cent of Ontario's 6,000 lawyers have since been subjected to checks of their books without prior warning.

"We began the blitz and spot audits to find out conditions in the profession because in the late '50s we were having too many disbarments," says Kenneth Jarvis, law society secretary. "They have proved a most useful tool, both for keeping the society fully informed and helping lawyers improve their book-keeping systems."

The society is aware that not all lawyers are honest. "These audits have helped us to find and get rid of these individuals and we intend to continue with them."

One effect has been that lawyers are taking more care with their accounts. In 1963, the year before the checks began, there were 10 disbarments. Last year there were three and there have been three so far in 1967. The improved situation has also resulted in a modest drop in the compensation fund levy paid by all lawyers. The fund was created to compensate victims of wrongdoing by solicitors. From 1961 to 1964 it was $45 a year. It rose to $50 the following year, dropped to $75 in 1965-66 and to $65 this year.

Balance in the fund on June 30 was $702,682. Claims against the fund amounted to $1,027,629 but only one-third are expected to warrant compensation.

In the first year of the program auditors visited 243 firms in East Toronto, Windsor and Ottawa. Then they concentrated on Chatham, Kingston, Orillia, Sudbury and St. Thomas. Technical breaches were found in 169 firms and they were asked to provide certificates of an auditor that their books had been brought into strict compliance with the rules.

In 1965 Toronto was the chief target, with 50 auditors visiting 1,087 firms. The society's own auditor and staff took on other firms in Sarnia, Lindsay, Woodstock and Niagara Falls.

Once all firms have been visited the society will start over again.

CANADA'S STORY

Loyalists Arrival Caused Changes

By BOB BOWMAN

The American Revolutionary War caused big changes in Canada as well as in the U.S.A. Most important was the influx of United Empire Loyalists to the remaining British North American colonies. So many of them settled in the Maritimes that it was necessary to create a new province called New Ireland at first, but then New Brunswick.

Many of the Loyalists made their way from the Maritimes past Quebec, and settled along the St. Lawrence, and Lakes Ontario and Erie. Others went through New York and crossed the Niagara River into Upper Canada. They completely altered the structure of Canada which had been predominantly French.

The British government then decided it was advisable to divide Canada into Upper and Lower provinces and William Pitt (the younger) introduced the Canada Act in the House of Commons on March 4, 1791. The bill was debated far more keenly than was the British North America Act in 1867. Some of the statesmen taking part, including Fox and Burke, had debated the Quebec Act in 1774. The Canada Act posed so many problems that it was not proclaimed until Aug. 24 to come into effect Dec. 26.

Pitt wanted Canada to have a hereditary nobility with both provinces having Houses of Lords. The Church of England was to be the state church of Upper Canada. The United Empire Loyalists were opposed to things working out that way. They or their ancestors had left Britain to get away from nobility and a state church. Most of them were Methodists, Presbyterians or denominations other than church of England.

Most of them were also accustomed to self-government with the result that the first elections in Canada were held in 1792. This was a real novelty for French-speaking Canadians.

When the Canada Act was being debated it was even suggested that the British North American colonies should be united in a confederation, but this did not happen until 1867.

OTHER EVENTS ON AUGUST 24:

- 1814 British attacked Washington, D.C. in reprisal for Americans having sacked York and Niagara.
- 1831 Steamer "Royal William" left Quebec on first trip to Halifax.
- 1835 Sir Charles Grey and Sir George Gipps arrived in Canada to investigate conditions.
- 1852 Governor Douglas founded Nanaimo, B.C.
- 1870 Wolsley expedition arrived at Fort Garry, Louis Riel fled.
- 1885 North West Territories census revealed population Assiniboia 22,000, Alberta 15,500, Saskatchewan 10,700.
- 1923 Coal miners in Alberta and British Columbia ended strike that began March 31, 1922.
- 1943 Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt ended conference at Quebec.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Son Aged Six Poses Problem

By DR. JOSEPH G. MOLNER

Dear Dr. Molner: My son, six, has some sort of a problem. He cannot collect or cut with scissors, did not walk or talk until he was two. He seems bright but something is wrong. He is stubborn as the dickens. You cannot either go along with him or scold him to do what you want him to. He will never answer questions, just looks at you. He drives his teachers crazy and they do not know how to handle him.

He has been in kindergarten a year and will have to stay another year. The school suggested a physical examination by the school doctor, and thinks there may be brain damage. He has been very much in the care of baby-sitters for unavoidable reasons, and I wonder if his trouble could be emotional. But I would like him checked physically first.

Where could I take him for a complete test? I have listened to so many people and have come up with exactly nothing. I do not know where to start.—MRS. E.G.

When a child is so hard to handle that he has to repeat kindergarten, it is obvious that something is wrong. Perhaps brain damage is responsible or involved to some extent. Emotional disturbance would, from the description, seem to be involved, but whether it would spring from so much supervision by baby-sitters is problematical.

You need answers from specialists who, after studying the boy, can tell you what problem you are actually facing.

A good physical examination in order to start with, but it seems obvious to me that psychological testing and study of his emotional responses will be necessary.

There is no point in your trying to do a job which you can get some positive determination.

I presume, or hope, that you already have a pediatrician. He can start the examination and then refer you to more specialized experts.

Or—since you live in one of the cities which has an excellent children's hospital—arrangements could be made to have all the testing, of various sorts, conducted there.

For parents in other communities, a child guidance centre is the best source of help, but at many of them, perhaps most of all, such centres will want a physician to make his examination and then refer the youngster to the centre.

For non-city dwellers, the best place to start is with your own family physician or pediatrician if you have one, and let him make the necessary referrals in the nearest appropriate city.

The important thing, Mrs. E.G., is that you recognize that something may be wrong. You gain nothing by trying to guess in advance what the problem is. That's what specialists are for, to diagnose difficult conditions.

Whether the problem is basically physical, mental or emotional, or a combination, the place to start is with your pediatrician.

Dear Dr. Molner: For several years as I fall asleep I start breathing through my mouth even though I can breathe perfectly through my nose. Then I awake from the dizziness in my mouth. I tried adhesive tape but that irritated my lips. I tried I should think the tape would indeed irritate. Have you tried a chin strap, fastened to a cap of some sort?

I should think the tape would indeed irritate. Have you tried a chin strap, fastened to a cap of some sort?

Note to N. Del.: Some cities have several classes for emphysema patients to show proper breathing exercises. The TB and Health Society usually is an excellent place to learn where such classes are in your vicinity.

TIGHT LANDING

Ferrying South Vietnamese Rangers, helicopters of the U.S. 199th Light Infantry Brigade swoop in on a landing

South Vietnamese troops took part in Operation Shelby, a combined sweep of the area.

Both U.S. Points Of View To See S. Vietnam Poll

WASHINGTON (AP)—Supporters and critics of the Vietnam war among 20 prominent Americans President Johnson is sending to observe South Vietnam's presidential election. They include clergymen, labor leaders, businessmen and politicians.

In essence, said George Christian, presidential press secretary, they have been asked "to share an experience with the South Vietnamese people. They are not going there to supervise."

Although they will not be asked to prepare formal reports, Christian said, the travellers will not be restricted in what they can see or what they can say later.

The U.S. delegation, chosen in response to an invitation by the South Vietnamese government, leaves Monday aboard a U.S. military plane and returns about Sept. 6. Expenses will be paid by the government. The voting is Sept. 3.

Senate leaders, some of whom have charged that the elections might be rigged in favor of the military government Premier Ky heads, rejected the invitation. Among them was Senator J. W. Fulbright, a persistent critic of Johnson's Vietnam policies.

WELCOMES MOVE

In Saigon, the American acceptance was welcomed by Tran Van Do, South Vietnamese foreign minister. He said the governments of Japan, New Zealand, Greece, Belgium, the Philippines, and Laos also will send observers.

Invitations were sent, he said, to all nations with whom his country maintains diplomatic relations as well as civic groups and other private organizations. Newspaper men from free nations will be welcome to observe the election process, he said.

In Ottawa, however, a spokesman for the external affairs department said Canada never had been "formally approached" by the South Vietnamese government about sending observers.

As a member of the three-nation International Control Commission for Vietnam, Canada has permanent observers stationed in both the South and North.

Plenty Of Hissing, Heckling In S. Vietnam Election Drive

CAN THO, South Vietnam (AP)—South Vietnamese voters, getting the hang of how to heckle, are turning whistle-blowing into a bawdy business.

"We understand you have two big villas and an American limousine, how come?" demanded a farmer at a rally today, the first in the populous Mekong Delta.

"Can you prove it?" retorted the candidate, Ha Thuc Ky, running for president in the Sept. 3 election.

A thousand people jostled on balconies and sampans on the river or squatting on the dusty curbs booed and heckled. A South Vietnamese army sergeant, who said he had been told by his communist officer to attend, stepped to the microphone. The audience hissed.

"I understand that after the November, 1963, revolution you came to national police headquarters and asked a number of political questions. Is that true?" he asked.

"I released five men by orders of the Court of Justice," Ky replied.

There were more boos.

The rally at Can Tho, South Vietnam's second largest city, was typical of the on-and-go campaign being conducted by the 10 civilian candidates for president.

A minor scuffle resulted when one soldier shouted at the microphone. "Our country is at war with the support of allied forces present here. The whole situation should be changed, morally, economically. People should be unified in one bloc. You all are not doing enough."

A police officer pulled him away. The crowd surged forward. The rostrum moderator yelled for order. The police officer clapped someone on the stage told him to arrest the soldier. The crowd hissed and booed.

No Revolt, Says Laing

REED NARROWS, Ont. C.P.—Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing denied here reports of possible Indian revolts in Canada were "utter rubbish."

Speaking at an Indian gathering in this community, 40 miles southeast of Kenora, Mr. Laing said Indians are the "peaceable people" he has seen.

Mr. Laing, later in an interview, said 90 per cent of the Indian population would not resort to violence and the remainder "are talking loud and couldn't back them up."

"You can't import racism into Canada. It's a free and open society and won't accept any kind of racial supremacy."

The answer to the Indian problem is equal education and employment, Mr. Laing said.

The minister said the Indian Affairs Department is planning the next round of talks with the Indians in the next few weeks.

French Journalist Has Trial Delayed

CAMBI, Bolivia (AP)—The public part of the trial of French journalist Rene Delmas and six other men accused of aiding Bolivian guerrillas has been postponed for the week of Sept. 10 to the head of the military court said here today.

Delmas, a Marxist, claims he came to Bolivia only to interview Cuban guerrilla leader Ernesto "Che" Guevara.

FROM CHARLES TO KEVIN

Victoria Cross Covers Span

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

More than 110 years and thousands of miles separate an Irish sailor named Charles Lucas and an Australian soldier named Kevin Wheatley. But together they span the history of the world's most coveted decoration, the Victoria Cross.

Their names are the first and last on the current list of 1,345 men whose bravery in battle has been recognized by the award of the Victoria Cross.

The VC winners have come from many races and countries. Together, living and dead, they form one of the great companies of mankind—linked by the recognition of personal courage which has earned the highest commendation their fellow men can give.

For the living, it is a dwindling company. Only 210 VCs were known to be alive early this year. And the number will undoubtedly fall steadily unless the Commonwealth again becomes engaged in a major war.

The Victoria Cross was first conceived during the Crimean War when Queen Victoria became concerned because there was no real way of recognizing exceptional bravery among the common soldiers of her armed forces.

She decided to institute the Victoria Cross which, she wrote, "we are desirous should be highly prized and eagerly sought after by the officers and men of our naval and military services."

The first VCs were distributed in 1856 by the Queen at a special ceremony in Hyde Park, London, to 62 men for brave deeds in the Crimea during the previous two years.

FROM RUSSIAN GUNS

Compared with the glittering stars and bejewelled decorations of other honors, the VC was and remains an unspectacular-looking award. Cast in bronze from Russian guns captured at the Battle of Sebastopol, it is a small cross bearing a crown, a rampant lion and the words "For Valour." On the back is the name of the winner and the date of his award. It is suspended from a brass bar and maroon ribbon.

In the years since 1856, other decorations have been instituted to honor outstanding acts of bravery. But the Victoria Cross remains the ultimate honor.

Several factors have tended to shorten the lists of living VCs.

For one, the Commonwealth has enjoyed a period of relative peace during the last 20 years. Only six men have won the Victoria Cross since 1945 while dozens of former winners have died in the same period of age, wounds or illness.

In addition, modern warfare has involved an increasing reliance on long-distance weapons, reducing the number of occasions when conspicuous bravery "in the presence of the enemy" is likely to be necessary.

At least of all, there has been a growing tendency in this century to award the VC for heroism which has resulted in the death of the hero.

HOW THEY DID IT

The stories of the first and last VCs, Lucas and Wheatley, are clear illustrations of the prowess required for a Victoria Cross.

Lucas was the 20-year-old mate of the British warship Hecla on June 21, 1854, when a shell from a Russian shore battery fell on the deck of his ship in an early engagement of the Crimean War. Lucas picked up the shell and tossed it overboard, where it exploded harmlessly.

For his bravery, he was promoted to lieutenant the same day. Two years later after the Queen had inaugurated the decoration, Lucas became the first to be awarded a VC. He eventually rose through the ranks to become a rear-admiral and died in 1914 at the age of 80.

In contrast, Wheatley did not live to learn of the honor conferred on him.

A warrant officer with one on the Australian training teams attached to the South Vietnamese Army, he was killed Nov. 13, 1965, when he and a wounded companion he insisted on helping were overtaken by a Viet Cong force.

Wheatley refused to retreat to safety when enemy fire started and remained to help his wounded fellow Australian before both were overrun and died after a brave defence by Wheatley.

Although women have always been eligible to win the VC, all of the winners so far have been men.

The list includes four civilians, all Indians, recognized for bravery in 19th century battles. Also might not have been honored under the conditions which now apply to the award. Similarly, six men were given the VC in its early years for bravery when the enemy was not at hand.

POLITICAL APATHY HIT

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Rockefeller has told a group of business women that they should not be involved in politics.

"I don't see how a woman can be involved in politics without losing her femininity," he said.

The group, known as the "Business Women's Political Action Committee," was formed in New York City.

Three men have won the VC twice, an incredible feat in view of the rigorous standards for the award. And on three occasions, the sons of VC winners have themselves received a Victoria Cross. In addition, there are four sets of brothers who have won the honor.

The most stunning record probably belongs to Britain's Gough family. Charles and his brother Hugh won VCs in separate engagements during the Indian Mutiny of 1857-58 and Charles's son James received a VC in Somaliland in 1903.

The list of awards is headed by members of the British Army, whose total is 823. The Indian Army and its predecessor, the Honorable East India Company, count 153, including 101 earned in the turbulent years before 1914. British naval forces have 118 VC winners in their rolls and the RAF 31.

Australia counts 88 VCs. Canadians serving in Canadian uniform have won 79, not including one for pre-Confederation Newfoundland. The award also has gone to 23 Canadians serving with the British armed forces. New Zealand forces have won 21 VCs and South Africans 28. One each has gone to Fiji and African forces.

In some cases, awards went to men from other countries who had enlisted in Commonwealth forces. One of these is America's Unknown Soldier buried in Westminster Abbey here after the First World War.

In the years from 1856 to 1914, a total of 522 VCs were awarded, of which only 14 were posthumous. The First World War brought 634 awards, including 188 posthumously. Four were awarded in the years between world wars.

In the Second World War there were 182 VCs. Nearly half of those honored—87—were killed in action before they could receive their medal.

Sjoberg-Chase Vows Held In Free Methodist Church

The Free Methodist Church, Kelowna, was decorated with lovely arrangements of pink and white gladioli on August 12 at 3 p.m., when Velma Elaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Leland Chase of Rutland, became the bride of Dennis Clifford Sjoberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sjoberg of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan.

Rev. Joseph James officiated at the ceremony and Miss DeLore Mitchell of Moose Jaw sang O Perfect Love and the Wedding Prayer accompanied by Miss Marjorie James of Moose Jaw.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant as she walked down the white carpeted aisle to meet the groom under an archway of ferns and gladioli. Her full-length gown of organza over crepe was fashioned with a high empire waistline and an A-line skirt. The bodice was crowned with a cascade of lace, and a long full train flowed gracefully from the waistline. A cluster of roses, stephanotis, and daisies, held her shoulder-length veil of nylon net in place and she carried a cascading bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

For something old, something borrowed, the bride carried a flowered handkerchief belonging to her grandmother. Something blue was her garter.

Miss Sharon Chase of Kelowna was the maid of honor, Miss Faith Schnell of Edmonton and Miss Audrey Naka of Kelowna were bridesmaids and Miss Marie Chase was the junior bridesmaid. The four attendants wore similar floor length sleeveless dresses of organza over crepe styled on empire lines and topped with organza coats with three-quarter length sleeves trimmed with lace. Four layers of nylon net crowned with shrimp colored roses formed their headpieces.

The pretty little flower girl was Miss Wendy Hunter and the ring-bearer was Master Martin Chase, both of Kelowna.

Acting as best man was Darrel Sjoberg of Moose Jaw and the ushers were Leslie Chase of Kelowna, Clayton Sjoberg of Moose Jaw, and Raymond Chase of Kelowna.

At the reception, held in the Pine Grove Lodge in Winfield, the mother of the bride received wearing a pink lace sheath topped with a matching lace coat, a crystal necklace, white accessories, and a corsage of white carnations and pink sweetheart roses. The groom's mother, who assisted her in receiving the guests, chose a two-piece pink suit accented with a white hat, white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

The best man, Darrel Sjoberg, proposed the bride's table was a three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with pink roses and silver leaves and flanked by tall candles in silver holders. Centering the guest tables were low bowls of floating gladioli.

Out of town guests attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Donald March of Westbridge; Mr. and Mrs. Wes Stewart of Summerland; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Nolls of Girvin, Sask.; Miss Dolores Mitchell, Miss Marjorie James, Wayne Lewry, and Mrs. D. Sjoberg, all from Moose Jaw, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. A. S. MacBean and family from Ontario; Mr. and Mrs. G. Schnell and Miss Faye Schnell from Edmonton, Alta.; and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hanley from Penticton.

Before leaving on her honeymoon to the United States the bride changed to a navy linen sheath worn with a navy and white houndstooth coat, a white hat and gloves, red accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The newlyweds will reside at 626 Dufferin St., Moose Jaw, Sask.

Best Accessory For A Woman Would Be Well Dressed Man

TORONTO (CP)—The best accessory for a woman is a well-dressed man, says Sid Frohman of the Men's Fashion Council of Canada.

And, he says, the woman who wants her man well-dressed will usually have to cajole, flatter and advise.

"About 80 per cent of the men's furnishings—shirts, ties and socks—are bought by women. About 70 per cent of men's clothing purchases are influenced by women who go along and say 'Yes, dear, you look great in that.'"

"Women are always fashion conscious. Not so with men, they wear their clothes until they're in shreds."

The council is sponsoring a men's fashion show at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, and it's aimed at women. Its theme is how to keep your man well dressed.

Mr. Frohman says color co-ordination and suitability are two of the most important criteria in being well dressed. The primary key, you must wear the right shoes with the right hose and the right suit, going up to the hat.

"You should also be wearing the right type of clothes for the function. When you go to a cocktail party, the women are beautifully dressed and you take a look at their husbands—they look as if they've just rolled out of bed."

Mr. Frohman urges color co-ordinated shirts before five and white shirts after five. He says a man is not properly dressed for business unless he is wearing a hat.

Among the most common faults in men's dress, he says, are ill-fitting jackets, trousers too wide and too baggy, too little shirt showing and unshined shoes.

"Men should realize the business world today is very competitive and being well dressed and well groomed is important."

COLOR IMPORTANT

Mr. Frohman says saddle and sage will be fall's fashionable colors. Saddle shades are bright browns, sage is blue-green.

"Men are getting away from black and blue suits into color."

Fabrics will be in checks and plaids. Suits will be styled with two-button jackets with side vents and slant pockets. Suit trousers but not sports slacks will have cuffs, and both will be pleated.

You may see sports outfits with reversible vests. One side matches the jacket, the other the slacks, and the hat will match the jacket.

Some suits will be sold with matching top coats and hats. Dinner jackets will appear in gold, royal blue, jade green. Tuxedos will be more elegant, with brocades and braid.

"Men should not think this is effeminate clothing. It is not. Men's clothes are not dull now, it's fun to dress well."

Mr. Frohman says Mod styles have influenced men's clothes, and have helped create some fashion excitement.

"And thanks to Mod, 14 and 15-year-olds are wearing suits. Boys haven't usually started wearing them until they were 18 or 19."

"Young men are more style conscious than their fathers and in many cases are educating them."

ANN LANDERS

A Very Important Bit Of Information

Dear Ann Landers: I have a message that can save lives and described things she had hoped would happen, but never did.

I have always been insecure and sensitive, especially where my marriage was concerned. My husband is handsome and vigorous and women simply flip over him. I am plain and quiet and never understood why he married me. When I found that letter I went to pieces, and I can't seem to pull myself together.

We have three beautiful children and a lovely home. I have tried to recover from this blow but I'm not making the grade. My doctor told me to forgive and forget. Is it possible? — STILL HURTING.

Dear Still: You bet it's possible. Millions of women are doing it. And most of them have a lot more evidence than you have, Lady. If you can't forgive him for HIS sake, forgive him for YOUR sake. From the sound of your letter, I suspect if your husband didn't have a girl friend, you'd invent one.

Dear Ann Landers: How long should a former governor still himself "Governor"?

A certain gentleman, who shall be unnamed, has not held this office for one heck of a long time, yet his wife refers to him as "the Governor" and so do his other relatives.

Give them the word, will you? — UNIMPRESSED.

Dear Un: The word is for YOU. Although former governors (and other public officials as well) do not continue to use the title officially, they often retain the title officially for the rest of their lives. This does not bother me the least, but obviously it bothers the daylight out of you. Why?

Dear Ann Landers: How long does it take to recover from a broken heart? I've been over a year since I discovered that letter in my husband's pocket. He denied being seriously involved — said he mistook "friendship" for something deeper. According to him the friendship was just a flake.

Dear Ann Landers: You hardly ever see a tubby fish. And because fish haven't much fat on them, they're a good friend if you're dieting to get into that skinny-pants suit.

What fish as a food does have is a high protein content, necessary to stay healthy while losing weight. As a protein source, fish ranks with meat, poultry and dairy products.

Fish with the least fat and lowest calorie count are cod, haddock, sole, perch and pickarel.

Hallbut and whitefish contain slightly more fat, and the chubbier fish of all are herring, lake trout, mackerel and salmon. But even these contain fewer calories and less total fat than most other comparable protein foods.

Holland-Taylor Ceremony Takes Place In Esquimault

St. Andrew's Church at the Canadian Forces Base at Esquimault, V.I., was the scene of a pretty August wedding when Heather Lynne Taylor of Victoria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Douglas Taylor of Kelowna, exchanged marriage vows with Thomas Richard James Holland of Victoria, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Holland of North Burnaby. The officiating clergyman at the double-ring ceremony was Mr. Alan Benton of the Knox Presbyterian Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of Ligoda silk and D'Alencon lace fashioned on empire lines with a scalloped neckline and lilypoint sleeves. Her graceful train of D'Alencon lace was attached at the back neckline with pearls and sequins and a circlet of white roses held a chapel veil of scalloped white net in place. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white carnations tied with moss green ribbons to complement the trim on the attendants' dresses.

For something old the bride wore the pearls her mother received from her father on their wedding day. Something borrowed was her veil, and something blue a garter.

Miss Jo-Anne Taylor of Victoria was her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaid was Miss Amy Kawano of Victoria, formerly of Okanagan Centre. Their long dresses of soft yellow Ligoda silk were styled with high empire waistlines accented by delicate yellow satin rose buds with moss green velvet leaves. Their headpieces were yellow net, whimsies held in place by yellow satin rose buds and they carried bouquets of white carnations tipped with yellow.

Acting as best man was Vaughn Franske of Victoria and the usher was Dennis Ettel of Victoria.

At the reception held in the Tally-ho Travel Lodge Hall the mother of the bride received wearing a dress of blue crepe with a ribbon lace bodice and blue accessories. The groom's mother, who assisted her in receiving the guests, chose a suit of white knitted lace with white accessories, and both mothers wore corsages of pink carnations.

E. M. MacIntyre of Vancouver, a family friend of many years, proposed the toast to the bride, which was aptly answered by the groom, and the best man gave the toast to the bridesmaids. The bride's book was in charge of her sister Miss Patricia Taylor.

Centering the lace cloth covering the bride's table was a wedding cake decorated with yellow roses and topped with a double-ring motif. White candles in silver sconces flanked the cake, and the bouquets of the bride and her attendants completed the decor.

To travel on her honeymoon to the Oregon Coast the bride donned a suit of geranium pink wool accented with black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Holland will reside at No. 5 Grotton Manor, 550 Rupert Street, Victoria.

Registered Nurses Are Serious About Salary Increases

VICTORIA (CP)—Registered nurses in British Columbia will trend a militant push this fall in contract bargaining with general hospitals.

They seek monthly salary increases of more than 50 per cent as well as a 37½-hour work week instead of 40 hours.

And the nurses are serious, says Evelyn Hood, director of personnel services for the Registered Nurses Association of B.C.

Nurses have seen their incomes slip behind others and a wave of militancy in the United States last year resulted in increases of between $100 and $200 a month, she said.

"People just laugh at five per cent," said Miss Hood. Registered nurses' earnings between $300 and $350 a month to start rising to $460 after four years.

The nurses, at their annual meeting, adopted a scale starting at $600 a month rising to $841 in the sixth year as well as the shorter work week and other proposals.

These will form the basis of proposals when bargaining starts in October. Current contracts expire at the end of the year.

There are about 4,000 nurses involved in the negotiations at 62 hospitals, represented by the B.C. Hospitals Association.

Shoulder Harness Plan Suspended By Ford Motors

NEW YORK (AP) — Ford Motor Co. announced Tuesday it has suspended installation of shoulder harnesses, one of the most controversial of the new 1968 auto safety items.

Installation of the harnesses is mandatory for all passenger cars sold in the United States after next Jan. 1 under provisions of the new federal Highway Safety Act.

Highway administration safety officials in Washington were not available for comment, but an agency spokesman said the Ford announcement came as no surprise.

There was no immediate comment from Chrysler and General Motors, but Victor Raviolo, American Motors vice-president, said his firm had not installed them as yet.

The harnesses, which cost about $35 a pair, has been one of the least popular of the new safety ideas as far as Detroit auto-makers are concerned.

"A lot of people are not using their seat belts and we are going to have an even harder job trying to sell them on the safety value of shoulder harnesses," said a Ford spokesman.

Ford in its announcement said "it will co-operate in a federal highway administration review of the advantages and possible disadvantages of the upper torso safety belts by providing pertinent results of its tests with these belts."

TESTS SHOW PROBLEMS

A spokesman for the Automobile Manufacturers Association said the most serious problem involving shoulder harnesses had been uncovered in simulated collisions run with dummies in the cars.

He said that in some cases a rear seat passenger who had on the shoulder harness would be projected forward on an impact and that the head of the rear seat dummy would bang against the head of the front seat dummy.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXE is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Opening lead—king of spades.

Bridge would be a much easier game to play if the complications that occasionally arise to plague declarer could in some mysterious way be made to disappear.

But bridge being the kind of game it is, problems do occur which have to be solved, and this is perhaps all for the best because it helps make the game that much more interesting.

For example, take this type of hand which occurs from time to time. South ruffs the second spade lead, draws four rounds of trumps, and then tries the club finesse.

The queen loses to the king and East returns a spade. As a result, South goes down two—200 points.

Of course, South is somewhat unlucky. The trumps might have been divided 3-3, or West might have had the king of clubs, and in either case South would have made the contract.

But, despite this, declarer must be blamed for the result. As a matter of self-preservation, and to cater to the possibility of a bad trump break and the club-king being offside, he should not ruff the ace of spades at trick two. Instead he should discard a club.

When West persists with the third round of spades, South ruffs, draws four rounds of trumps, and then takes the club finesse. He loses the queen to the king, as before, but there is now a big difference—East does not have a spade to return. Whatever he plays, South makes the rest of the tricks and the contract.

The refusal to ruff at trick two is typical of the philosophy that characterizes the careful declarer's approach to the play. Declarer assumes that the trumps are divided 4-2 and that the club finesse, when attempted, will fail.

He hopes he is wrong, but prepares for the worst. Occasionally his pessimism pays off, and he is then justly rewarded for his foresight.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW

Yesterday's adverse Mercury restrictions lift now, so Friday should be an excellent period for all written matters, advertising and promotional work, and communications generally. Intellectual pursuits and aviation interests favored all the way.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY

If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that, no matter what your present circumstances, you will, within six days, enter an excellent month-long cycle for advancing your occupational and financial interests, and progress made during October will carry forward into the new year.

These advances during January, the first half of February, in late April, early May, the last half of June and the entire month of August, 1968. Just two admonitions, however: Be extremely conservative in fiscal matters throughout the forthcoming November, the latter half of December and next April for, despite the gains promised during the latter month, you may face some unanticipated expenses. And, on the job front, do nothing to jeopardize your position in early November, or you could lose out on chances for advancement next year.

Personal concerns should run smoothly for most of the year ahead, but be alert to possible periods of stress in close circles in late October and early January. These could be caused by the Virgoan's innate tendency toward hypercriticism which, though well meant, usually creates antagonism. Influences governing romance will be most propitious during October (an all-around good month for all Virgoans); also next April and June. Both travel and social activities should prove highly stimulating in October, January, April and the weeks between June 15th and September 1st of next year. The period between now and January 31st (also next June) should bring some unusual recognition to creative workers.

A child born on this day will be unusually gregarious; talented along literary and/or scientific lines.

Lumbermen In Interior Make 'Irrelevant' Claims

KAMLOOPS (CP)—The International Woodworkers of America charged today that Interior lumber manufacturers' arguments against union wage demands "are quite irrelevant, if not misleading."

Jack Moore, regional IWA president, was presenting a 140-page union brief to Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe, industrial inquiry commissioner investigating a dispute between the 8,000 union members and the employers.

The brief, complete with charts, maps, graphs, clippings and lists of figures, says basically that Interior operators are making hefty profits, and are well able to afford an increase in wages to match those paid on the British Columbia coast.

The brief says Interior operators, while not having it as easy as those on the coast, are well taken care of by lower stumpage costs, paid to the government.

"The crucial point which must be emphasized here is that stumpage is a residual value, that is stumpage is what is left over from the selling price after all production costs and an allowance for profit and risk have been removed from the market price for timber," the brief says.

LBJ Assures King Faisal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Johnson has written to King Faisal of Saudi Arabia to assure him that Israeli troops will be withdrawn from areas they seized in the June war if the Arabs make "certain arrangements," the Beirut newspaper Al Hayat reports.

In a dispatch from Washington, Al Hayat says "arrangements" mentioned by Johnson were left vague but the President hinted in the letter he meant his five-point program announced June 19.

Johnson called for full Arab recognition of Israel's statehood, in time for Arab refugees, the right of all disputants to a international waterway, a cease on the withdrawal of the military forces, and the withdrawal of Israeli troops from all occupied areas.

Other points were that Israel and a "host of Arab leaders" expected to meet in the Lebanese capital. The reports said King Faisal of Jordan, once in Beirut, might for a two-day stay in the Jordanian capital. The report also said that the Arab League would meet in Beirut.

Meanwhile, the United Nations is holding a conference in Geneva for Khartoum to discuss the reports.

NOT EXTENDING DEBATE: Meanwhile, the United Nations is holding a conference in Geneva for Khartoum to discuss the reports.

That conference will be the first of the United Nations since the Arab League meeting in Beirut.

On Tuesday, the United Nations will meet in Geneva for Khartoum to discuss the reports.

What's everybody in B.C. saying about this popular whisky?

Cheers. And you'll cheer too once you've tried Walker's Special Old. You'll like the mellow smoothness and the look of luxury. No wonder it's one of Canada's favourites.
